

no. 24

Power
Jul 2024

pg 28
Social media's stranglehold on fashion

pg 76
Stephen McGown,
the longest-held
Al Qaeda hostage

pg 86
Bhutan as you've never seen her before

At The Vanguard
$10.00 ISSN 2811-0102

Ho Tzu Nyen

Through The Valley, Into The Clouds

From lush pine forests to verdant rice terraces and majestic dzongs to vast wetlands, the views in the kingdom of Bhutan are as diverse as they are exquisite. As guests of the Department Of Tourism - Bhutan, our journey through the land of the Thunder Dragon was rich with beautiful sights and warm Bhutanese hospitality.

Photography CHIA WEI CHOONG

Shot with a Leica SL3 and the APO-Summicron-SL 35 f/2 ASPH and Vario-Elmarit-SL 24-70 f/2.8 ASPH lenses

An early morning fog reveals the Tiger's Nest

Young monks running into Gangtey Monastery, founded in 1613

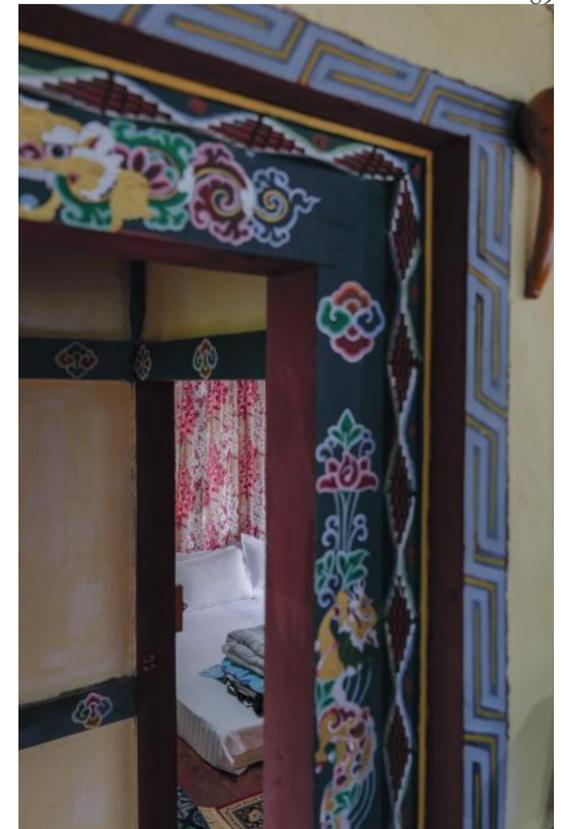

Dressed in traditional Gho, Bhutanese men wait for their turn in a game of darts

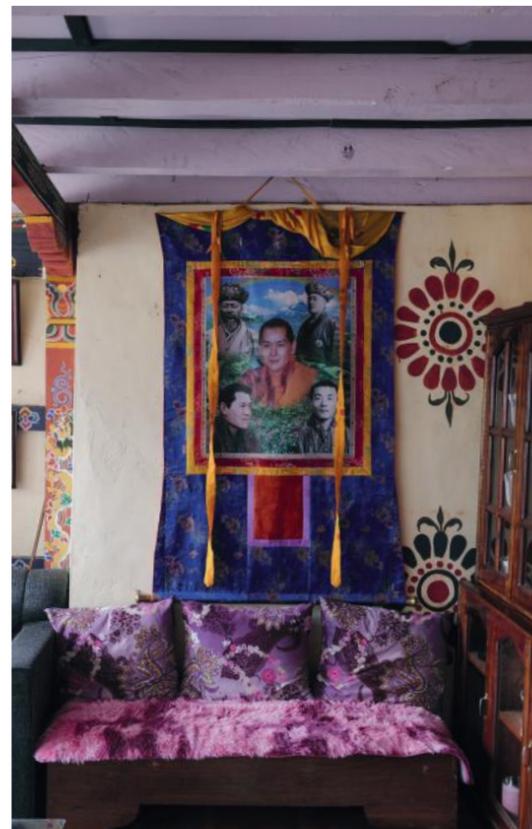

A young man ascends the stairs at the Dochula Pass 3,140m above sea level

Lala, owner of Lala Homestay in Punakha, poses for a photo with her mother

The vibrant interior of the homestay features traditional motifs painted on its walls and door frames

A wall hanging in Lala's festive living room features all five kings of Bhutan with the current monarch, Jigme Khesar Namgyel Wangchuck, in the middle

A young girl in the doorway of her mother's café in Punakha

A monk calls out to a friend inside Gangtey Monastery as a worker fixes a damaged wall

A girl runs off into the distance along the Khamsum Yulley hiking trail

Built in 1637, the Punakha Dzong is Bhutan's second largest fortress-monastery and one of its most picturesque sights

A gentleman with his dog smiles warmly as we pass through Gangtey Village

Special Thanks to Department of Tourism - Bhutan Bhutan.travel Soul Trips www.SoulTrips.co
 Drukair Royal Bhutan Airlines www.DrukAsia.com